This new Routledge title, edited by two leading scholars, is a four-volume collection of canonical and the very best cutting-edge work in feminist economics, an innovative and dynamic area of scholarship that has broadened the scope of economic inquiry and has allowed a richer and more complex understanding of the ways in which economies function.

Volume I ('Early Conversations, 1800–1960') gathers foundational work produced before the professionalization and specialization of the social sciences by writers who were variously categorized as journalists, reformers, and—occasionally—as economists. Their writing provides important historical background on subjects such as household production, women's participations in paid labour, and gender equality, subjects that remain central to feminist economics today.

Volume II ('Households, Labour, and Paid Work') brings together the best work by professional economists examining various aspects of women's labour both within and outside the domestic sphere. Topics include reproductive labour, caring labour, women's labour force participation, the gender wage gap, occupational segregation, and the economics of the family.

Volume III ('Engendering Development and Economic Well-Being') assembles work with a specifically international or global perspective. Among the topics covered are: women and development; the gendered effects of structural adjustment; property rights; economic transformation; and measures of economic well-being.

The final volume in the collection ('Epistemological and Methodological Considerations') focuses on a feminist rethinking of economics. Volume IV collects the best scholarship on methodology, the history of economics, and postmodern and postcolonial critiques of both feminist and conventional economics.

Fully indexed and with a comprehensive introduction to each volume newly written by the editors, which places the collected material in its historical and intellectual context, Feminist Economics is an essential reference work. It is destined to be valued by scholars and students of economics—as well as those working in allied disciplines such as women's and gender studies—as a vital research resource.
Feminist Economics
CRITICAL CONCEPTS IN ECONOMICS

VOLUME I
Early Conversations, 1800–1960

Part 1: Economic Literacy
1. Jane Marcet, * Conversations on Political Economy: in which the Elements of that Science are Familiarly Explained*, 5th revised and enlarged edn. [1824]

Part 2: On Gender Equality, the Family and the Economy

Part 3: On Household Production and Consumption

Part 4: On Women’s Education, Work and Wages

Part 5: Feminist Economic History

Part 6: Feminist Economic Proposals or Change

VOLUME II
Households, Labour and Paid Work

Part 7: Household Labour and Reproductive Labour

Part 8: Caring Labour
35. N. Folbre and J. A. Nelson, For Love or Money—or Both?, Journal of Economic Perspectives, 2000, 14, 4, 123–40

Part 9: Economics of the Family

Part 10: Discrimination, Occupational Segregation, and the Wage Gap